Hello, Mozilla

I'm Nick Adams, a Designer with about 10 years of experience designing everything from design systems to web and mobile apps.

I'd love to be a part of your team.

Who Am I?

Most recently I've been a Product Designer at Hudl. I've been there for 6+ years where I've worked on a wide variety of projects — mobile apps, web apps, design systems, design ops, user research, etc.

Why Am I Applying?

I think Mozilla is a vital force in the technology industry at the moment. The diversity of the web as a platform seems to be waning — whether it comes to privacy or technology — and I've always respected Mozilla's position as a true alternative.

I've recently switched back to Firefox as my primary desktop browser (after years using Chrome), and have been really impressed with the product. I'm in the process of doing the same on mobile.

The opportunity to work on the mobile browser is extremely interesting to me as a design effort, but also important to me as a cultural effort. I think the gains Firefox has made of late on the desktop with Quantum should definitely be leveraged and built upon on the mobile side to provide another true, quality alternative. I'd love to be a part of helping to do that.

In my current job I've worked on a number of mobile related projects across iOS and Android, and have also helped rethink some of our mobile app architectures. The evolution of both of these platforms — both technically and design-wise — has always been something that has piqued my interest and these projects were some of my most satisfying over the past 6 years.

I'd love the chance to talk more about my experience and skillset to see if there is a good fit for me on this product and team.

Thank you for your time and consideration!

— Nick Adams